Recommendation Letter for

Mr. David Serrano

To whom it may concern,

I am writing this recommendation letter upon request from David Serrano who is applying for the Master in Computer Vision.

I am currently working with David as supervisor for his Final Degree Project. David is working in a system for anomaly detection in nuclear fusion reactors. In this task, he is using classical computer vision techniques, machine learning and deep learning. David is demonstrating excellent technical and theoretical abilities. He has had to learn multiple machine learning and computer vision techniques, including Deep Learning in a very short time. David is very proficient at reading the technical literature and at applying state of the art algorithms and he is showing very good programming capabilities. He is extremely motivated and has a critical mind, always making meaningful suggestions and proposing new ideas.

David is a responsible, highly motivated, hard working and independent person. He is also receptive to suggestions and positive criticisms and working with him is a pleasure.

For all these reasons I am able to recommend David without hesitation, as I think he will perform very well in the master.

Sincerely,

Josep Ramon Morros, Ph.D
